Tuxedo

The Perfect Tobacco for Pipe and Cigarette

D. S. GORDON
Brigadier General, U.S. Army
"Tuxedo tobacco gives a mild, cool and soothing smoke. I would not use any other tobacco."

Why have so many thousands of men forsaken all other smokes for Tuxedo?

Because they tried Tuxedo and found it the one tobacco with all the essentials of a perfect smoke—supremely mild, sweet, fragrant and without a particle of bite or irritation.

No such tobacco was ever known until the "Tuxedo Process" was invented by a doctor to refine and mellow the natural leaf and remove every trace of bite.

Other tobaccos make big claims about so-called processes—but the fact remains that none of these imitations has ever equalled the original "Tuxedo Process." That's why Tuxedo is the most wholesome tobacco—no other can be made by the "Tuxedo Process."

One week's trial will make you a permanent Tuxedo smoker.

University Extension Service increasing.

"Five hundred Missouri teachers taught school and attended the University of Missouri at the same time last year," said C. H. Williams, Secretary of the Extension Division of the University at Columbia.

While the Extension Division is only three years old, it now has twenty-five times as many students enrolled as at its beginning. It has increased 250 over the enrollment last year.

Courses in education are the most popular with extension students. This is accounted for by the fact that the big majority of those taking correspondence work are teachers. Agriculture is likewise very popular. History, English, mathematics, sociology, and language courses are also given by the extension department.

Through the University extension service teachers have the opportunity to make up entrance requirements. One-half unit of high school work or a two-hour course in the University may be completed within one month. A five-hour course requires about six months for completion. Ten hours' work may be taken each year, and extra credit for good work is awarded as in the regular session.

Lantern slides on historical and language subjects are loaned for use to any school that has a lantern. An art exhibit may be borrowed. In addition, lectures by University professors are arranged for the Extension Division.

"While extension work is not intended to supplant the regular university work, it has the advantage of being much less expensive, as well as convenient for those who are unable to attend the University," said Mr. Williams.

THE MAN OF MANY MYSTERIES

Eugene Laurant, One of the World's Leading Magicians, Coming to Chautauqua.

Nearly Two Hours of Rapidly Unfolding Mystery—A Great Feast of Fun For the Children.

Eugene Laurant, "the man of many mysteries," is announced as one of the foremost magicians of the day. For twenty-five years he has devoted his genius to the study and invention of entertaining tricks of so-called magic, until he has come to stand in a class by himself.

For his appearance at Chautauqua here he brings six people and a dray load of paraphernalia. He carries all his own stage furniture, curtains, accessories and contraptions of every kind used in making his illusions and mysteries complete. He is the only magician to introduce the musical element as a strong feature of his program.

His performance ranges from quaint and curious prestidigitations in sleight of hand to some of the most astounding feats and illusory effects ever conceived. Nearly two hours elapse while one thrill follows another in quick succession, until the enthusiastic audience gasps at the sudden consciousness that it is 10 o'clock.

Nothing has ever been devised in the way of entertainment that compares to Laurant's exhibition as an entertainment for children. They simply eat it up. And the old folks eat with them, apparently as well pleased as the kiddies.

of the leading cornet artists of the whole world. He plays several solos in every program, always to the delight of his audience.

Before becoming a leader in the world of music Kryl gained success as a sculptor, and it was he who was awarded the contract for building the statue of General Lew Wallace. His home is also a veritable art gallery.

It is as bandmaster, however, that he shines most, and he considers the perfecting of his present band organization the greatest work of his life.

Williams a Winner.

Judge Fred L. Williams is making a splendid showing in his race for the Democratic nomination for Judge of Division No. 2 of the Supreme Court (unexpired term). This is not surprising to his many friends who have known him and kept in touch with his career. From a farmer boy, in early life, without financial backing, he worked his way through college and law school coming out the honor man of his class. Upon finishing law school he located at Joplin, where by his own efforts he arose to the top of the Jasper county bar. Three years and a half ago, when the Supreme Court was looking over the State for a man to appoint upon the Supreme Court Commission to aid the court in writing opinions and relieve the overcrowded conditions of the Supreme Court docket, Judge Williams was selected by the court from a list of more than thirty applicants. So satisfactorily did he perform his work that he was again elected by the unanimous vote of the seven judges for another term as a commissioner. He is forty years of age, stands six feet three and is as large mentally as he is physically. He is energetic and has written his full share of opinions since he has been sitting with the Supreme court. He possesses a rare judicial temperament and a great career is predicted for him on the bench.

His only opponent is from the City of St. Louis. That city already has two out of the seven Supreme Judges, while Judge Williams' section of the State has none. Williams is not running against any of the present members of the Supreme Court.

We are of the opinion that the Democratic voters of the State will encounter little difficulty in arriving at a choice in this race. —Democrat-Tribune.
